The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

NEWS that the Red army is within in artillery range of Stettin and the main railroad line of German retreat from Danzig, Pomorze and the northwestern tip of Prussia brings us back to a familiar pattern of Russian strategy.

Stalin's men, many of whom are gathered at the Oder like water behind the lip of a dam, are also about to cut another great scallop out of Hitler's domain along the Baltic and trap another important segment of his army. The entire German left flank, which occupies something like 20,000 square miles and has been strongly defended, is tottering.

Either the Germans already have gotten out what they can of these northern forces for the defense of Berlin or few of them will be available when the crisis comes.

North of Stettin there is a railroad of sorts across the strip of land which divides the Stettin Lagoon from the Baltic, but Stettin is the main outlet for all the threatened area. And another Russian drive farther east, last reported near Neustettin and headed for Koenigsberg, threatens complete disruption of the region's entire railroad system. Capture of Koenigsberg would divide the salient into two great pockets.

There is no way of telling how many Germans are in the bag, but it must be taking strong forces, many of whom fled from East Prussia.

MAY LIBERATE CITY WITHOUT MAJOR FIGHT

One Advancing U. S. Column Less Than 18 Air Miles Away

(By Associated Press)
GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, Feb. 3—Two powerful American armored columns raced toward Manila from the north today amid strong indications the Philippine capital would soon be liberated without a major fight. One U. S. force was less than 18 air miles away.

First Cavalry (dismounted) division troops drove a new arrow toward Manila Thursday by sweeping 57 miles in 24 hours down the east flank of the central Luzon plain to Subang, within 24 miles of Manila, and beyond.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today this thrust completely severed Japanese forces in the north and south of Luzon.

Elements of the 37th division which led the advance down central Luzon crossed the Angat river to the environs of Malolos, communications center just 17 air miles to the north.

A third American spear was pointed at Manila from the southwest in Batangas province, where the Eleventh Airborne division landed Wednesday.

Neither of the two columns speeding on Manila from the north met anything but scattered, ineffective resistance as they rolled along highways which converge a few miles north of the city. There was no indication the Japanese would put up a stand.

"It is a race between forward elements of the First Cavalry and the 37th divisions to see who enters Manila first," wrote Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz.

Three enemy destroyers were observed off the northwest coast on Wednesday and were engaged by U. S. medium bombers. In a two-day running battle one destroyer was sunk and the other two severely damaged.

The 26th division in the northern sector established road blocks south of captured Umingan, "giving us complete control of the last remaining highway in the northern central plain," MacArthur announced.

Eighth army troops put ashore north of Subic Bay last Monday advanced six miles toward a juncture with Sixth army units forking westward from San Fernando to seal off the Bataan peninsula. Only light resistance was encountered.

Mental Hygiene Bureau For Ohio Established

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3—Welfare director Frazier Reams announced today establishment of a Bureau of Mental Hygiene, to conduct research and disease prevention work, as part of the State Division of Mental Diseases.

The bureau will be headed by Dr. Edward J. Humphreys, native of Batavia, N. J., whose salary will be $7,200. Dr. Humphreys formerly was associated with the New York State Psychiatric Institute and was director of research and acting director of mental hygiene for the Michigan State Hospital commission.

Cleveland Is Named Ohio Motor Bureau Chief

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3—Frank M. Quinn of Cleveland is the new registrar of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. An inspector in the bureau since 1935, Quinn was named to the $5,000 a year job yesterday by Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

He replaces Cylon W. Wallace of Toledo, who was appointed by former Gov. John W. Bricker.

GERMANS CLAIM REDS REPULSED AT ODER RIVER

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Feb. 3—Russian attacks on the Oder river have been repulsed, the German high command declared today as American air fleets rocked Berlin with 3,000 tons of bombs in aid to Soviet troops massing along the river 40 miles east of the capital.

One Berlin broadcast said Marshal Gregory Zhukov's troops had won but later lost a bridgehead over the Oder near Kustrin.

The Moscow radio declared one of Zhukov's columns had spearheaded to within 11 1/2 miles of Stettin on the Baltic. A plunge to Stettin would lop off 13,500 square miles of northeastern Germany, the Polish corridor, and the Danzig area.

Kustrin is on the Oder 40 miles east of Berlin. A huge battle was reported raging farther south, four miles east of Frankfurt.

The rain of bombs from more than 1,000 U. S. Flying Fortresses crashed on the refugee-choked capital, within sound of Soviet guns shelling Nazi defenses on the western side of the Oder.

Zhukov's drive on Stettin, 74 miles northeast of Berlin, threatened to cut off great German forces, and to open Berlin for an attack from the north.

Kustrin Is Shelled
The Germans rushed fresh divisions up to the Oder river line. The German military commentator Col. Ernst Von Hammer declared the "western bank of the Oder has now been mopped up of Russian forces" after one spearhead had won a temporary bridgehead near Kustrin.

Moscow dispatches said Soviet artillerymen were pumping shells into Kustrin, 40 miles northeast of Berlin. Kustrin and Frankfurt form the last major barriers before Berlin.

South of Kustrin other Russian vanguards plunged forward from captured Drossen, 14 miles northeast of Frankfurt and 51 miles east of Berlin.

The midnight Russian war bulletin said the Nazis were constantly replenishing their shattered forces east and north of Frankfurt, but despite a stubborn resistance they were losing one position after another under blows.

Another column of Zhukov's men, coiling northwest around Kustrin, reached the Oder river at a point 39 miles from Berlin, the Germans announced. This advance threatened to outflank Kustrin and take it from the rear.

Moscow's communique did not confirm that fighting was in progress at Kustrin, itself. It did announce the capture of Alt Limmritz, 10 miles east of the city.

Berlin Is Alarmed

In an 11-mile advance the Russians seized Malsow, 24 miles east of Frankfurt and four miles south of Zienzien, driving ahead at the lower end of the curving 55-mile bulge pointed at Berlin and Stettin.

The First White Russian army captured more than 150 places yesterday.

In the drive on Stettin Soviet forces captured Soldin, 25 miles northeast of Kustrin.

A DNB broadcast from Berlin repeated German alarm at the double-barreled thrust by Zhukov. It said the eastern danger zone could be divided into two main areas—the march on Berlin and the attempted break into Stettin to split the German northeastern armies from those in the central front sector.

Lausche Asks All Business Places Go On 5-Day Week

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Feb. 3—Gov. Frank J. Lausche in a proclamation recommended today that all business in Ohio go on a five-day week, and suggested that Monday would be a good day for them all to shut down.

The one-day closing would be in effect until April 1.

Lausche said there was no way in which the state could force such a five-day program, saying details of cooperation must be worked out among the various cities and counties.

But he expressed belief that surely all would go along. They must, he said, if our homes are to be heated.

BERLIN—The War's No. 1 Prize

Berlin, mapped above, is considered the greatest prize of the war. Outside of being the enemy's capital, it is an important military objective. It is the nerve center of the Nazi military and economic machine. It has 200 major factories which employ 10 per cent of Germany's industrial workers to produce a great variety of war materials. As the hub of 12 main lines, it is the country's leading railway center and is also Europe's main air transport center.

Willman Will Head City's $32,300 Red Cross Drive

Carl Willman, commercial manager for the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., today was appointed chairman of the annual Salem Red Cross War Fund drive, whose goal is $32,300.

A resident of Salem for the past 10 years, since moving here from Cleveland, Willman has a personal interest in the war-time campaign. His son, Corp. Leon D. Willman, is now in the midst of the fighting for the Philippine Islands.

The campaign chairman is a member of the Kiwanis club and a 10-time Red Cross blood donor.

Final arrangements and committees for the drive have not been completed, but Chairman Willman said an organization meeting will be set as soon as a speaker and date are arranged with National Red Cross headquarters.

NAB FOUR MORE BOYS TO SOLVE BURGLARIES HERE

Police yesterday took into custody four more Salem youths—ranging in age from 14 to 17—on charges of complicity in 12 burglaries committed here and in Canton within the past two months.

Apprehension of the quartet of youngsters came as a result of a detailed confession by a fifth boy, taken into custody Tuesday evening. The first boy told police of 12 different breaking and entering crimes and named the others involved with him.

Police were able to nab the first youth through discovery of a number of American Laundry Co. book matches on his person. Although not reported as part of the laundry loot, stolen on Jan. 25, the matches are not distributed to the public and a check with the company officials proved that possession of the matches must have come at the time of the burglary.

The arrest of the four yesterday brings the total to 11 boys arrested this month on similar charges. The juveniles will be turned over to probate court for further action.

REV. CROFTS COMES HOME FROM CHINA

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Rev. Francis X. Keelan of Cambridge, Mass., missionary who spent nine months in a Hong Kong prison camp after that city fell, and Rev. D. W. Crofts, 78, of West Point, Columbiana county, Ohio, a missionary in Central China for 50 years, were aboard an Army-Navy transport arriving here from Asia with 200 civilians and several hundred soldiers.

Axis Says Allied Leaders Meeting

(By Associated Press)
A security blackout veiled the movements of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin today as Axis capitals speculated that the Big Three conference was under way in Romania.

A dispatch from the Swiss border town of Chiasso to the Geneva newspaper La Suisse quoted Fascist sources in Italy as saying the conference had begun in the Romanian Black sea port of Constanta.

One German broadcast had fixed the site as Bucharest, the Romanian capital, while the German Transocean agency said the Allied leaders were conferring at a Romanian port on the Black sea.

DECREASE IN TAX REVENUE IS SEEN

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3.—The State Tax department estimates that tax revenues this year will drop $5,630,000 below the 1944 collection of $170,681,187 because of curtailed use of gasoline, liquid fuel, cigarettes and liquor.

The 1944 collections were $2,511,094 above 1943 and Tax Commissioner C. Emory Glander said the state's three per cent retail sales tax, liquor gallonage levies and intangible personal property assessments accounted for most of the increase.

Most Ohio taxes go into the general fund with some earmarked for specific purposes.

With expectations the European war will be over next year and anticipated price increases, Glander expects 1945 returns will be close to $170,000,000.

All estimates, he pointed out, were based on present tax structures.

YANKS STORM THROUGH LINE

Two Divisions Burst Clear Through First Siegfried Wall

(By Associated Press)
PARIS, Feb. 3.—Two American divisions burst completely through the first pillbox belt of the double Siegfried line today and surged across open country two-thirds of the way through the whole defense system. Some troops gained as much as three miles.

The German high command reported lively air activity and increasing artillery fire in Holland and on the front along the Roer river in Germany, amid rising indications of an impending Allied offensive.

Field Marshal Von Rundstedt gave this cryptic command to his troops: "Orders for what we have to do have been given. Comrades, now more than ever we must be watchful."

The Americans along a 40-mile attack front have run into stiffening resistance.

One front dispatch declared Germans were springing to the counter-attack at points from concrete bunkers, and termed the fighting the heaviest since the height of the Germans' December breakthrough into Belgium.

The battle was particularly fierce in the area 10 miles southeast of Monschau, where the 82nd Airborne division seized Udenbreth and heights dominating the Siegfried line 1 1/2 miles inside Germany.

Fighting east of Monschau, the First Army's Second Infantry division had cracked the west wall at one of its widest points 30 miles southeast of Aachen, and driven 10 miles inside Germany.

Pushing on, the Second division seized Schonnecken and Harperscheid, three miles from the Siegfried fortress of Schleiden and 32 miles from Bonn, communications hub on the Rhine.

The Second division was through the first of two main defense belts there, but enemy opposition stiffened.

Germans fought as bitterly against the U. S. Third Army's push farther down on the 40-mile assault front, and hard fighting raged for Bleis, 5 1/2 miles west of Prum, a supply center for the defense line.

Town of 4,600 Without A Single Lump of Coal

HILLSBORO, O., Feb. 3.—There wasn't a lump of coal for sale in this thriving little city of 4,600 today—and a lot of people were gold.

They bundled up, putting on maybe an extra shirt as they dressed this morning, and those with no coal in their bins gave thought perhaps to finding wood to burn.

The Presbyterian and Episcopal church indicated there might not be services tomorrow. The Hillsboro county courthouse's coal bin was empty, and the city's three grade schools and one high school probably will be closed Monday.

RECORD BOMB LOAD DROPPED ON NAZI CITY

1,000-Plane Armada Drops 3,000 Tons of Explosives In Day's Attack

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Feb. 3.—More than 1,000 American Flying Fortresses cast nearly 3,000 tons of bombs on the heart of Berlin today in the greatest air blow ever dealt that capital, now teeming with refugees.

The record attack was aimed directly at military and communications targets in the center of the city menaced by Soviet armies which the Germans say are only 40 miles away.

More than 400 Liberators, staging a diversionary attack that confused Berlin's defenders, pounded a synthetic oil plant and rail yards on the outskirts of Magdeburg, 65 miles southwest of Berlin.

The U. S. Eighth air force bombers were shielded by more than 900 Mustangs and Thunderbolts which streamed from Magdeburg to Berlin in a swift, protective shuttle, cutting down fighter opposition to the bombers.

300-Mile Long Armada
Berlin broadcasts declared the bombers and fighters formed a sky train stretching 300 miles from Berlin to the Dutch frontier.

Today's assault was more spectacular than the 1,000-bomber raid by the Eighth Air Force last June 21, which set the previous record, and more devastating to the core of the city. The strength of the June 21 formations was dispersed over a wide area of Berlin's outlying industrial zone, but today's blows were concentrated on the very center.

It was the 204th raid of the war on Berlin, and brought the total of bombs dropped there to nearly 50,000 tons—seven times the amount the Germans dumped on London during the aerial battle of Britain.

The RAF has made 22 major heavy bomber attacks. RAF Mosquitoes have hit the capital with two-ton blockbusters in 165 night attacks, and American raids account for the rest.

Today's blows apparently caused widespread confusion in the German capital, and the regular German high command communique was delayed more than an hour. Nazi propaganda agencies seemed remastered.

The raids followed attacks last night by more than 1,200 RAF bombers on rail, and communications at Wiesbaden, 20 miles southwest of Frankfurt on the main, and at Karlsruhe, just across the north-east corner of Alsace. The British lost 25 aircraft in the night attacks.

OHIO GIRDS FOR NEW FLOOD THREAT

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Feb. 3.—Governor Lausche disclosed today that Ohio's disaster organizations were preparing to meet floods which conceivably could reach proportions of the deluge in 1936.

He told a press conference that on the basis of data supplied him by river experts, there is enough snow and ice on the ground through the Ohio river watershed to cause serious trouble, and that he intended that Ohio should be ready to meet any emergency.

Should we get, he said, a hard rain on top of a 24-hour thaw, it was conceivable that streams would climb to levels reached in 1936.

He met for an hour and one-half yesterday with representatives of the Highway department, the State Highway patrol, the adjutant general, public works, Health department and Civilian Defense.

He said Adj. Gen. Donald F. Pannacht had been selected to supervise details to meet any emergency.

These departments, Lausche said, must not neglect their current obligations, but at the same time they must plan to meet a flood on the Ohio and know what to do should it come. They now are conducting a survey to determine what is needed, and will obtain the necessary supplies promptly.

Clears Plane Over City

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3.—Lt. Herman K. Kopp, Navy test pilot, buried his disabled plane over the center of Columbus at a height of 200 feet yesterday and then bailed out after he had cleared the populated area of the city. The flier, assigned to the naval air facility at Port Columbus, landed on a farm, and the plane crashed on an adjoining one.

Till The Well Runs Dry

Weather-aggravated shortages in fuel and transportation which now are the No. 2 problem in most communities, with direct bearing on the No. 1 problem of maintaining maximum war production, reveal something about human nature that is never safely forgotten.

Despite all the fine axioms that point to the danger of never missing the water till the well runs dry and the wisdom of a stitch in time, the wells continue to run dry and the stitches aren't taken. Instead, it is more pleasant to cross bridges when reached and to let the problems of each day be sufficient unto themselves.

In wartime, however, it is imperative to look ahead to the problems of tomorrow and be prepared to cross bridges that haven't been reached. The fuel problem which wasn't anticipated until it became an emergency should have been foreseen. The barn door should have been locked before the horse was stolen; and the roof should have been repaired before the rain began.

But unfortunately, few if any preventive steps were taken. The steps now being taken cannot prevent anything. At best, they only can alleviate a hardship already in existence. It is additional tell-tale evidence of the shortcomings of human nature in dealing with a crisis that even with an emergency at hand there are still many who remain opposed to recognizing it as long as they, personally, have suffered none of the consequences. Unless the weather moderates soon, none of us will have long to wait.

Goebbels Presiding

There is no reason to doubt that little Dr. Goebbels will destroy Berlin if he has time. It would be out of character for him and the other Nazis who are destined to make Germany's final decisions to turn to conservation at this late date. They would destroy Berlin for military reasons, and they are capable of destroying it for another reason.

They have preached the philosophy of life or ruin from the beginning of their bloody, destructive adventures. Neither in Germany nor in any of the countries they have conquered have they stopped short of nihilism to gain their ends.

They have gone so far toward embracing outright the nihilist doctrine that everything must be destroyed subject to their designs for reconstruction that more than one authority believes nihilism is an official credo. It is a ghastly possibility.

Nihilism, whose origin is traced to Russian revolutionists, some of them contemporary, calls for total destruction of everything that exists, on the supposition that everything in existence is bad and must, therefore, be obliterated. As a doctrine of revolution, it has done more than any other single thing to spread abject fear of proposals for change emanating from sources in the old world. If it has been embraced by Goebbels and his Nazi spotters, the destruction of Berlin may be assumed aside from all considerations of military expediency, depending only on the matter of the time left for the task. Even the Germans in their lust for laying waste must yield to the impossibility of undoing in a few days what others have toiled for centuries to erect.

First Redemption

Probably the 500 happiest men alive were the prisoners of war freed by the daring raid on the Japanese prison camp at Cabanatuan, the first large-scale prisoner redemption of the Japanese war.

The 486 Americans, most of them fighting men, who were rescued are a token payment on the debt owed to all Americans captured in the Philippines as a result of the rout which ended in the surrender of the survivors on Corregidor. It will not be so easy to redeem the others, many of whom have been deported, but the score with Japan will not be settled until all of them are safe.

One detail stands out in the first reports of the recaptured prisoners. It will be a boon to the morale of all relatives of prisoners—the fact that the Japanese, though capable of planned cruelty, have not been so cruel in their treatment of the prisoners at Cabanatuan as it was feared they would be. While the prisoners were not well cared for according to American and European standards, there is reassuring evidence that they were not maltreated according to Japanese standards. This may not necessarily hold true in the treatment of other prisoners elsewhere, but it is evidence that the Japanese are not universally committed to a policy of wanton cruelty.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, February 4.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a particularly propitious and promising one for all ecclesiastical, charitable, studious and worthy efforts are under sound basic foundations. All virtuous, meritorious and purposeful objectives are bound to find firm footings, with enduring recognition and suitable rewards. Persistent and faithful efforts should easily find their own rewards.

Those whose birthday it is may find a year in which definite progress may be made for placing the future and its rewards on a firm and enduring basis. All serious, practical and meritorious objectives are bound to be fully and lastingly recognized. Elders and those in influential places may assist in this.

A child born on this day will advance through its high purpose, worthy qualities and ambitions, reaching a sound and secure place in life.

For Monday, February 5.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a decidedly adverse one in which all advancement and progress must be wrested from difficult and dangerous situations in which there is little prospect of any assistance from outside influences. In fact, the adverse and menacing conditions may arise from high places, with deep-seated if not vindictive oppositions and antagonisms coming from powerful influences. Be calm, persistent and cautious, adhering to all codes and obligations.

Those whose birthday it is may have a difficult state of affairs, in which their place, reputation, principles and high purpose may have to be defended from sources in influential positions. Responsibility and obligations with integrity and patience may finally win out against powerful antagonisms.

A child born on this day will have efficiency and sound ideals but may have to defend these from opposition from those in prestige and power.

New Job For Uncle Joe

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's appointment as commander of the Army Ground Forces was by no means a consolation prize. But it came at a propitious time, on the heels of the Lado road's opening and the re-establishment of a Burma-China land supply route after three discouraging years. For if any one man can be given credit for the Lado road, it is General Stilwell.

His rugged, insistently optimistic leadership eventually made the road's construction possible against a bristling hedge of difficulties. Bolstering these qualities were a deep knowledge of China—her people, her problems and her terrain; a knowledge of the Jap and his tricks; a knowledge of the jungle and how to fight in it.

Such knowledge makes him an ideal choice to train the troops in this country for the fight ahead. The training he can impart should make our final fight against the Japanese somewhat less arduous. So we may count it fortunate that a delicate situation in China made his recall advisable.

"Uncle Joe" Stilwell made no I-shall-return promise when he left China. But it would not be surprising if the closing days of the war in the Far East should find him in the field, helping to deliver the final blow.

The Joys of Old Age

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"YOU have to get used to old age," my friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, admonished me.

"Just as you had to get used to childhood and adolescence. The child emerging from the stage of infancy, begins to walk and run and talk and satisfy curiosity and he runs into plenty of grief.

"The adolescent begins to have a lot of juices spurting into his tissues and he has all sorts of new feelings and he begins to notice girls from a new angle. It often makes him very mournful.

Just the Opposite

"You are beginning to have just the opposite. All your juices are drying up, you are having fewer feelings all the time and the new male you have on women is, you wish all of them would go jump in the lake and quit ordering you around. Well, all that is what makes you mournful.

"You have to get used to it and in the course of time you will get used to it, so don't try to rush the progress of the procedure. Take it easy and in the course of time you will be the same old kind of fuddy-duddy all the rest of us are. Just you are rebellious and belligerent.

"I know it hasn't got quite as much future as getting used to being adolescent, but there is a good deal of satisfaction in it just the same.

Done About Everything

"One of the things you have to get used to is that you have done about everything. The adolescent is still before him the pleasure of reading Pickwick Papers and Ark Twain and Sherlock Holmes. Now you have read all those and Plato and Aristotle too."

"Is that so?" I said.

"Yes—and Descartes and Hume and J. S. Mill."

"Is that so?" I said.

"The adolescent is just getting teamed up about ballroom dancing. Now you know all about ballroom dancing."

"Is that so?" I said.

"You gave up or quit doing all those things you used to do so well. That is probably the toughest thing to face except that you have so much time on your hands. You now play nine holes of golf on Saturday afternoon whereas you used to play eighteen in the morning and eighteen in the afternoon. That leaves a good deal of time to be consumed.

"Another great difference between the change from adolescence to manhood and the change from manhood to old age is that the adolescent is making new friends all the time, while you are losing them or getting indifferent to them. This you have to combat actively. You have all the money you need."

"Is that so?" I said.

Indifferent to Work

"So you are indifferent about work and people naturally turn to your younger associates for advice. With all this time on your hands you probably are thinking of doing a lot of reading or writing your memoirs, but I think you would be happier learning to do something with your hands—like whittling little toy boats for the children."

"Whittle little boats — is that so?" I said.

Till The Well Runs Dry

Weather-aggravated shortages in fuel and transportation which now are the No. 2 problem in most communities, with direct bearing on the No. 1 problem of maintaining maximum war production, reveal something about human nature that is never safely forgotten.

Despite all the fine axioms that point to the danger of never missing the water till the well runs dry and the wisdom of a stitch in time, the wells continue to run dry and the stitches aren't taken. Instead, it is more pleasant to cross bridges when reached and to let the problems of each day be sufficient unto themselves.

In wartime, however, it is imperative to look ahead to the problems of tomorrow and be prepared to cross bridges that haven't been reached. The fuel problem which wasn't anticipated until it became an emergency should have been foreseen. The barn door should have been locked before the horse was stolen, and the roof should have been repaired before the rain began.

But unfortunately, few if any preventive steps were taken. The steps now being taken cannot prevent anything. At best, they only can alleviate a hardship already in existence. It is additional tell-tale evidence of the shortcomings of human nature in dealing with a crisis that even with an emergency at hand there are still many who remain opposed to recognizing it as long as they, personally, have suffered none of the consequences. Unless the weather moderates soon, none of us will have long to wait.

Goebbels Presiding

There is no reason to doubt that little Dr. Goebbels will destroy Berlin if he has time. It would be out of character for him and the other Nazis who are destined to make Germany's final decisions to turn to conservation at this late date. They would destroy Berlin for military reasons, and they are capable of destroying it for another reason.

They have preached the philosophy of life or ruin from the beginning of their bloody, destructive adventures. Neither in Germany nor in any of the countries they have conquered have they stopped short of nihilism to gain their ends.

They have gone so far toward embracing outright the nihilist doctrine that everything must be destroyed subject to their designs for reconstruction that more than one authority believes nihilism is an official credo. It is a ghastly possibility.

Nihilism, whose origin is traced to Russian revolutionists, some of them contemporary, calls for total destruction of everything that exists, on the supposition that everything in existence is bad and must, therefore, be obliterated. As a doctrine of revolution, it has done more than any other single thing to spread abject fear of proposals for change emanating from sources in the old world. If it has been embraced by Goebbels and his Nazi followers, the destruction of Berlin may be assumed aside from all considerations of military expediency, depending only on the matter of the time left for the task. Even the Germans in their lust for laying waste must yield to the impossibility of undoing in a few days what others have toiled for centuries to erect.

First Redemption

Probably the 500 happiest men alive were the prisoners of war freed by the daring raid on the Japanese prison camp at Cabanatuan, the first large-scale prisoner redemption of the Japanese war.

The 486 Americans, most of them fighting men, who were rescued are a token payment on the debt owed to all Americans captured in the Philippines as a result of the rout which ended in the surrender of the survivors on Corregidor. It will not be so easy to redeem the others, many of whom have been deported, but the score with Japan will not be settled until all of them are safe.

One detail stands out in the first reports of the recaptured prisoners. It will be a boon to the morale of all relatives of prisoners—the fact that the Japanese, though capable of planned cruelty, have not been so cruel in their treatment of the prisoners at Cabanatuan as it was feared they would be. While the prisoners were not well cared for according to American and European standards, there is reassuring evidence that they were not maltreated according to Japanese standards. This may not necessarily hold true in the treatment of other prisoners elsewhere, but it is evidence that the Japanese are not universally committed to a policy of wanton cruelty.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, February 4.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a particularly propitious and promising one for all ecclesiastical, charitable, studious and worthy efforts are under sound basic foundations. All virtuous, meritorious and purposeful objectives are bound to find firm footings, with ensuring recognition and suitable rewards. Persistent and faithful efforts should easily find their own rewards.

Those whose birthday it is may find a year in which definite progress may be made for placing the future and its rewards on a firm and enduring basis. All serious, practical and meritorious objectives are bound to be fully and lastingly recognized. Elders and those in influential places may assist in this.

A child born on this day will advance through its high purpose, worthy qualities and ambitions, reaching a sound and secure place in life.

For Monday, February 5.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a decidedly adverse one in which all advancement and progress must be wrested from difficult and dangerous situations in which there is little prospect of any assistance from outside influences. In fact, the adverse and menacing conditions may arise from high places, with deep-seated if not vindictive oppositions and antagonisms coming from powerful influences. Be calm, persistent and cautious, adhering to all codes and obligations.

Those whose birthday it is may have a difficult state of affairs, in which their place, reputation, principles and high purpose may have to be defended from sources in influential positions. Responsibility and obligations with integrity and patience may finally win out against powerful antagonisms.

A child born on this day will have efficiency and sound ideals but may have to defend these from opposition from those in prestige and power.

New Job For Uncle Joe

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's appointment as commander of the Army Ground Forces was by no means a consolation prize. But it came at a propitious time, on the heels of the Ledge road's opening and the re-establishment of a Burma-China land supply route after three discouraging years. For if any one man can be given credit for the Ledge road, it is General Stilwell.

His rugged, insistently optimistic leadership eventually made the road's construction possible against a bristling hedge of difficulties. Bolstering these qualities were a deep knowledge of China—her people, her problems and her terrain; a knowledge of the Jap and his tricks; a knowledge of the jungle and how to fight in it.

Such knowledge makes him an ideal choice to train the troops in this country for the fight ahead. The training he can impart should make our final fight against the Japanese somewhat less arduous. So we may count it fortunate that a delicate situation in China made his recall advisable.

"Uncle Joe" Stilwell made no I-shall-return promise when he left China. But it would not be surprising if the closing days of the war in the Far East should find him in the field, helping to deliver the final blow.

"More Women Taking Up Law"—headline. But the same old number still know how to lay it down.

The Indiana bank robbed three times threatens to catch up with the baby's bank.

A pleasant smile goes a long ways—but it always comes back!

An Indian woman stole to bail her husband out of jail. He's still in, but at least she's with him.

Juvenile crime is on the increase. That indicates more parents are not on spanking terms with their children.

A Colorado woman has had 31 operations, but you get only one guess as to what she talks about.

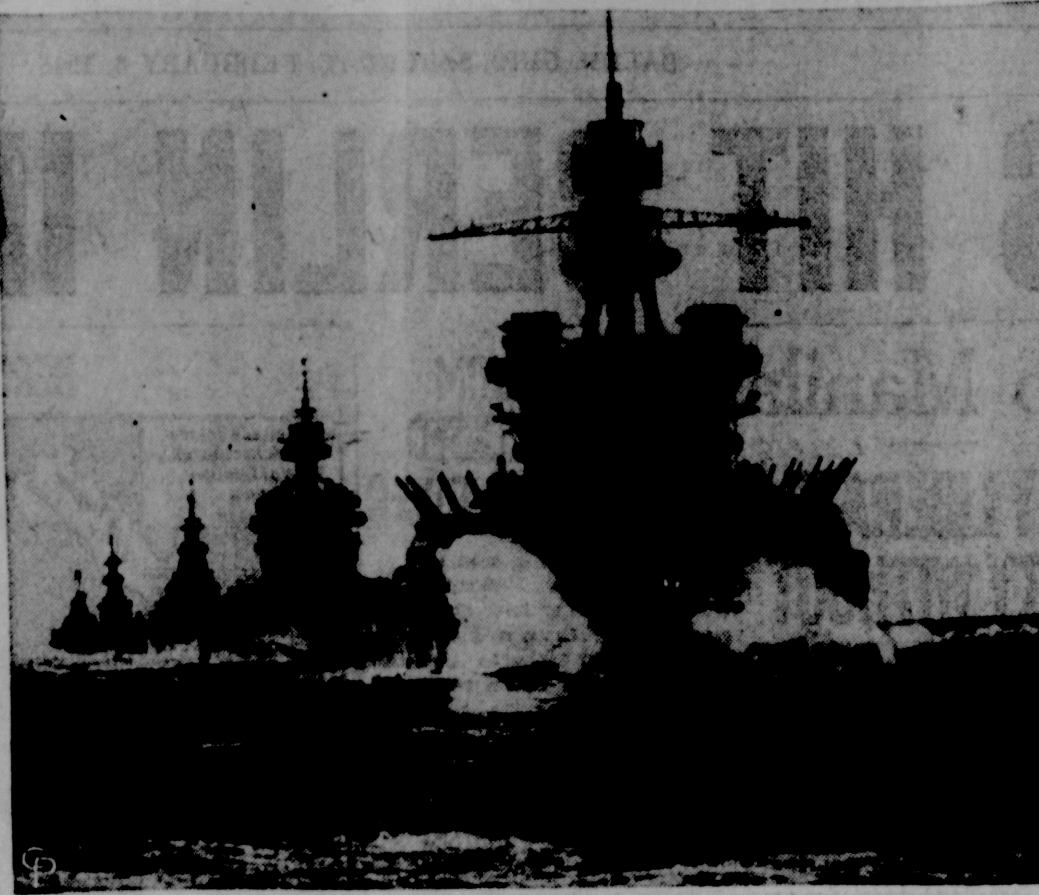

If you're interested, a toy manufacturer says the jumping rope is still No. 1 favorite with little girls. If you're not interested, skip it!

CORPSES AT INDIAN STONES

By PHILIP WYLIE

1943 by Author—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN
Sarah looked up from her solitary meal. When she saw it was Aggie, she beamed. "This," she said, "is about my two millionth game. Not one has come out yet." She reached for a large candy box on the table beside her chair, and bit into a chocolate. Her face immediately puckered and tears filled her eyes. She snatched up a glass of water. "Strawberry!" she exclaimed. "Tastes like nitric acid! It's killing me! Take these candies away before I forget again! What happened? Who were you talking to—just now—outside?"

"Captain Wickman—Wes Wickman."
"Well! Go ahead! Tell me about the evening! What was Wes doing around here, anyhow? Somebody was burglarized during the winter? Speak up! Here I sit—starving for conversation!"

"He was here," Aggie answered, sitting on the ottoman at Sarah's feet, "because Jim Calder has been killed."
He watched his aunt react. She got color—not much, but some. She thought for a long minute. "All right, tell me."
It took him an hour. She interrupted with short, breathless interrogations and exclamations, but she never let him talk. When he finished, she said flatly, "Jim, the eldest, just blundered into that trap! I'll bet on it! Now, tell me more about Danielle and Bill Calder."

He began to tell her as much as he could think of. But he realized that either Sarah wishfully thought Jim had died by accident, or else she had some other reason for deciding to avoid that phase of the discussion. What reason, he could not guess. After he had exhausted every other detail of the evening, she skirted the subject of the death once more. "So Wes told you not to tell anything to me, eh? Scoundrel! And you're two people's stooge, from now on."

"Two—"
"His—and mine."
Aggie shook his head. He was beginning to feel a great fatigue—reaction to the night and to the aimlessness of the quandary in his mind. "I'm nobody's stooge, Sarah, from now on. I signed up with you to do a little trivial espionage. I don't agree to poke into the death of a manifest rascal."
"You will, though."
"No."
"Why not?"

He yawned. "Well, because I've already damaged myself enough, for one reason. Every soul at Indian Stones except Wes thinks I'm a top-drawer pud. And Wes won't give me a good character, at my request. So I would blacken your name and impugn my senses. Another reason is you haven't come through with all you know—or suspect."

"Me?" Sarah's hazel eyes were wide and innocent. Too innocent. "You," he answered, rising from the ottoman.
She didn't deny it.
The next day, it began to rain at five o'clock and it rained hard. There were occasional diminutions of the gray pall, but not for long enough periods to cause people to go outdoors voluntarily. Aggie stayed in. He unpacked his clothes and the contents of the rest of his peculiar luggage. He read books. He refused to go to the club for lunch or for dinner. He volunteered to play cribbage with his aunt, but she was so piqued by his lack of co-operation that she refused any such solace. Dr. Davis came, and she sent for her nephew, but he was reported by old John to be immersed in a bath. She tried to persuade Aggie after dinner that people would want to see him; he told her that anybody who wanted to see him knew where he could be found. He went back to his treasures at ten o'clock and made no further sound.

Sarah, waking in the thin, black hours of morning, saw by the reflection on the trees that her nephew still had a light on. Still reading. Or—more probably—holding up work and thinking. She grunted with the discomfort of her ailment.

and the discomfort of her mind and went back to sleep.
The day that came after that night was sunny and hot. Old John woke Aggie—on Sarah's orders—with the news that he was to be present at a coroner's inquest at ten. John would have let him sleep through anything of so trifling a nature. And so would Sarah, if she'd had a mind to do it. Aggie at his breakfast in a cross and silent manner. He shot the station wagon through the stone gates noisily, and was gone for three hours. When he returned, he was still taciturn.

Sarah had a cold luncheon served to him in her room. Death by accident," he said. "Warrant out for whoever built that deadfall. He forked up a mouthful of salad and she warned him it would drop on his beard. He scowled at her—and the salad dropped. "Most perfidious thing you ever saw! Held in a room in the City Hall in Parkman. Doctor's reports—death by blow from log. He died some time the night we got her, definitely. I personally believe that deadfall was put up at the same time. Or in the afternoon of the day before we got her."

Sarah gazed at him. This was a tidbit of news. "You do? Why?"
"Plants!" he answered crossly. "The plants the two dead trees fell on—and the plants trampled around there. Juices still sticky. I imagine Wes noticed that, also. He notices most things. He's smart. Anyway, the doctors didn't find a thing that the blow wouldn't explain. They did an autopsy. Bill insisted on that. There were no fingerprints on the deadfall worth anything. Smears—that's all. Suspicious—but not conclusive. A lot of people wear gloves in the woods. Wes was wearing them himself, the other night. They didn't go into the murder angle much more than that. Brushed it over."

"But, Aggie, there's not a scrap of evidence it was murder!"
"Et tu," he said, staring at her. "No. That's the trouble. Nothing but rain. Why was the bull brier growing so as to make it essential for a man walking on that road to lean and thus to lunge? Did the brier really grow that way—or was it festooned there to set the stage for an appearance of accident? Things like that. Maybe there isn't a perfect murder. But I wonder—if there is ever a perfect accident, either? This one was absolutely pat. It had to happen that way. And yet—nobody can explain why Calder was there—except that he liked to ramble." He shrugged. "I saw Wes for a few minutes. Asked him if he'd learned anything about this—this—"

He was watching her from under his hand—rubbing his face and yawning. She supplied the name fast enough—but with perhaps a trace of a quaver—and perhaps the quaver was due to her swollen glands. "Hank? Hank Bogarty?"
"Mmm. He hadn't. The Albany cops checked all the hotels and the tourist homes. Nobody had registered by that name. Ads were put in the papers in quite an area. No response so far. Of course, they haven't any description. Not yet. They've wired British Columbia for one. Nobody herabouts has seen him recently enough to say more than that he'd had curly black hair and gray eyes, very far apart. Stuff like that. But he wired he'd be here—and he hasn't shown. Isn't it quite possible that your man Bogarty did drive in at Indian Stones and right up to Calder's after that man Thomson of his had gone to bed—and that—things happened, and Bogarty left these parts forever?"

"What things happened?"
"You tell me," he replied impatiently. "Since you've shut down on me—I'm licked. The whole joint is crowded with mummies. Not a word out of a soul. They are burying Jim Calder tomorrow—but I'm going for a swim right now."
"It's too soon after lunch," Sarah said petulantly.

Over Burma's 'Stilwell Road' to China

Wide Post-War Expansion Seen In FM Broadcasting

WASHINGTON—Frequency modulation is a new method of sending sound over the air.
There is no static mixed with FM broadcasts and reception is marked by high tone fidelity. FM enthusiasts say that the lowest notes of a solo violin and the crash of an orchestra come over the air in such perfect relation that the listener fancies himself present in the concert hall.

Originator of FM broadcasts is Maj. Edwin H. Armstrong, professor of electrical engineering at Columbia university and one of radio's outstanding inventors.

FM is not as mystifying as it sounds. This is how it works: Picture a radio beam carrying a program over the air from the transmitter of the broadcasting station to the receiving set in your living room. This is called a "carrier wave" and it comes in at the point on your dial assigned to the station by the FCC.

This carrier wave, however, cannot bring in any music or speech by itself. It has to have help from the sound wave originating in the studio. The process of varying or modifying the carrier wave by imposing the sound wave on it is called modulation. Regular standard broadcasting, or amplitude modulation, is done by modifying the power—or amplitude—of the carrier wave. FM is accomplished by varying the vibrations, or frequency, of the carrier wave, and is therefore called frequency modulation.

No Conflict With Standard
There is no interference between programs broadcast by standard and FM stations because the two operate in different sections of the radio spectrum—that public domain of the air which the FCC apportions to all users of radio. Each type requires its own home receiver, although many present-day sets provide for both kinds of reception.

About 50 commercial FM stations are now operating and there are about 500,000 FM receivers in the hands of the public. Predictions are that within five years after the war there will be as many as 2,600 such stations, with home sets numbering well into the millions.

Because the FCC looks for a huge investment in FM broadcasting equipment and receiving sets after the war, it has sought to assign the service to a place in the radio spectrum which will serve it for many years to come. The allocation is opposed by commercial broadcasters presently operating FM stations, who contend that the proposed standards have not been sufficiently explored by radio technicians. This and other objections will be heard beginning

SMART SUITS AND SLACKS SERVE IN CITY OR COUNTRY

If you are one of the fortunate girls who is getting a short vacation from her job, one whose job requires you to wear slacks, or a country girl, you'll be interested in the three outfits shown above. They consist of two slacks suits and a skirt and jacket suit the pieces of which are interchangeable so they may make several different combinations. All are made of naphthalated wool worsted fabrics. The slacks suit at the left is a four-piece ensemble consisting of a jacket, three-toned vest, slacks and skirt (which is not shown). Each piece may be purchased separately. The skirt consists of jacket and skirt, the first collarless and with a one-button closing; the skirt slender. The second slacks suit has a sleeveless jacket, and is piped in contrasting color. The slacks are well cut and the suit is worn with a white rayon shirt.

Household Hints

Grease the rim of the saucepan when you cook fudge to prevent it from boiling over.

To clean aluminum properly wash the utensil in hot, soapy water; rub with steel wool and soap; rinse with clear water and dry thoroughly.

Never use soda, lye, ammonia or any washing compound containing a strong alkali when washing aluminum as these tend to discolor.

Try using green peppers as a dish by themselves. Slice them, season with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and saute until tender.

SMART SUITS AND SLACKS SERVE IN CITY OR COUNTRY

If you are one of the fortunate girls who is getting a short vacation from her job, one whose job requires you to wear slacks, or a country girl, you'll be interested in the three outfits shown above. They consist of two slacks suits and a skirt and jacket suit the pieces of which are interchangeable so they may make several different combinations. All are made of naphthalated wool worsted fabrics. The slacks suit at the left is a four-piece ensemble consisting of a jacket, three-toned weskit, slacks and skirt (which is not shown). Each piece may be purchased separately. The skirt consists of jacket and skirt, the first collarless and with a one-button closing; the skirt slender. The second slacks suit has a sleeveless jacket, and is piped in contrasting color. The slacks are well cut and the suit is worn with a white rayon shirt.

Household Hints

Grease the rim of the saucepan when you cook fudge to prevent it from boiling over.

To clean aluminum properly wash the utensil in hot, soapy water; rub with steel wool and soap; rinse with clear water and dry thoroughly.

Never use soda, lye, ammonia or any washing compound containing a strong alkali when washing aluminum as these tend to discolor.

Try using green peppers as a dish by themselves. Slice them, season with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and saute until tender.

Swing It, Lady!

This year, U.S. farmers hope to produce 10,000,000,000 pounds of fats and oils. That's a top production estimate.

Imports of fats and oils have been cut in half by the war and will remain low until we win total victory in the Pacific.

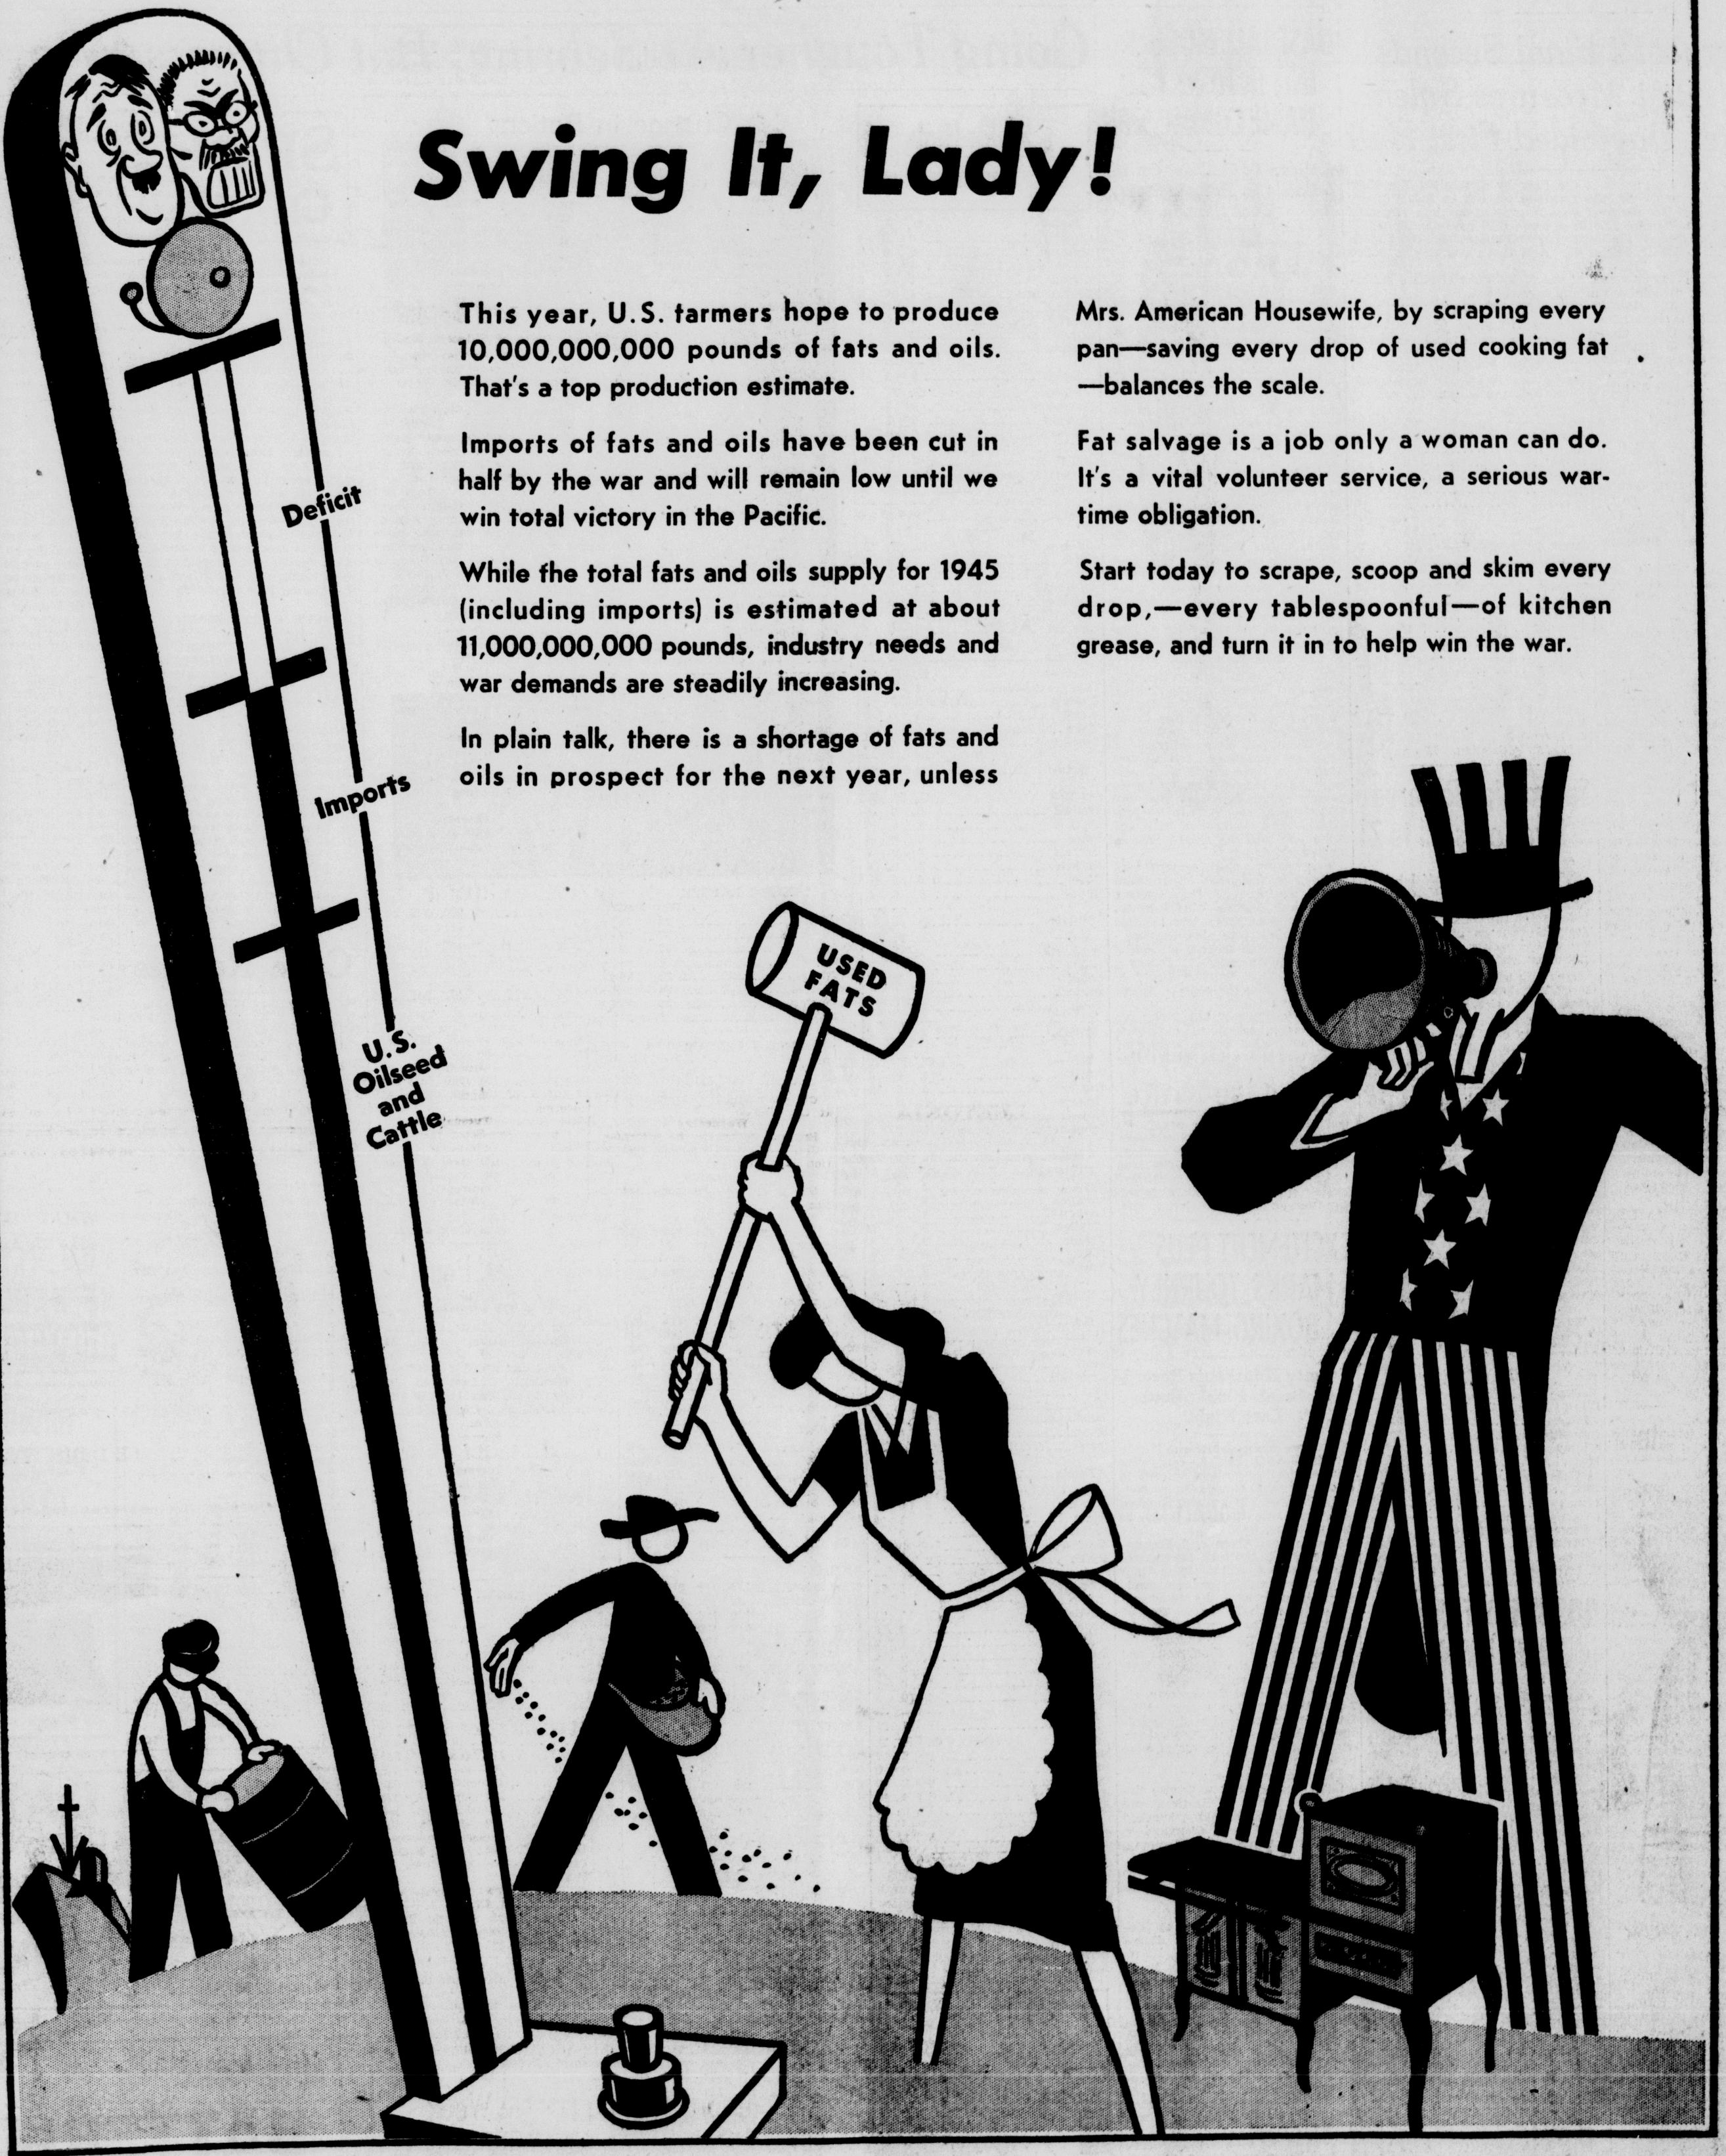

While the total fats and oils supply for 1945 (including imports) is estimated at about 11,000,000,000 pounds, industry needs and war demands are steadily increasing.

In plain talk, there is a shortage of fats and oils in prospect for the next year, unless

Mrs. American Housewife, by scraping every pan—saving every drop of used cooking fat—balances the scale.

Fat salvage is a job only a woman can do. It's a vital volunteer service, a serious war-time obligation.

Start today to scrape, scoop and skim every drop,—every tablespoonful—of kitchen grease, and turn it in to help win the war.

Quakers Falter In Last Half, Drop Third To Potters, 42-40

E. Liverpool's Final Second Long Shot Measures Salem After One-Sided First Half

A long shot from the center of the floor by diminutive Jim Kelly with just 20 seconds to go put the finishing touches to Salem High's third loss in 13 games last night at East Liverpool's spacious Memorial auditorium before a well-packed house of some 1,365 paid spectators.

The swishing heave from the center stripe of the 84-foot court made the score East Liverpool 42, Salem 40. And that's the way it ended seconds later.

The Pottery victory was a result of one of the most effective steam-roller comebacks ever dreamed up in any cage contest.

Afterwards, Lanney, hindered somewhat by a bad ankle, played a good portion of the game.

The victory brought Liverpool's record to 11 wins and three losses, while Salem now has 10 wins in 13 games.

From the second half tip-off right down to the final buzzer, the Quakers were a completely different appearing outfit from the smooth-working combine that whizzed over the shining boards in the first two frames.

What snapped in Quaker offensive tactics is a question, but one thing is certain: East Liverpool came to life and dumped through a sizzling 15 point barrage to Salem's five in the third and outpointed the losers 11-8 in the hair-raising final.

There's a cage theory that says the team which takes the most shots is most likely to win. Facts last night would prove that statement. Salem tossed 31 at the hoop in the first half and got 12 of them through. The Potters threw some 24 and completed seven.

In the second half Salem tried at the bucket only 14 times and six went through the meshes. The Potters, however, got away 20 shots and made good on ten. Salem only had six shots at the basket in the final third.

Perhaps a better set of facts to explain why the Quakers were on the short end of the final tally is the fact that Salem collected single points on four of 14 tries, allowing 10 points to slip by. East Liverpool made good on eight and missed eight.

From the floor the locals outdid their conquerors. Coach Bob Miller's charges put 18 field goals through the hoop to 17 for the Potters. Of these 18, two were made on long shots and 16 from within the fever line. The Potters caged six of their 17 away out and got 11 from down under.

The tide turned in the third frame. From the start Liverpool took over and some uncanny heaving by Kelly and Jim Harris, coupled with a few buckets from Dick Horton, Bill Cain and Bob McGraw, sliced the margin to one point, 32-31, as the third period ended.

Liverpool, behind since the first minute of play, stepped into the lead momentarily as the fourth began. After Kelly had tied it with a foul and Bob Mullen added two points on a toss from the center. It was 34-32 until Walt Brian knotted it again, with seven minutes to go.

Mutt Schaeffer put Salem in the lead with an under basket push-up and two fouls, one by Harris and another by Mullen, knotted it again. There were four minutes left.

Mullen got another foul and Liverpool led for a second until Schaeffer dumped a two-point shot to put Salem ahead again, 38-37. McGraw's one-handed toss netted two more Potter points and the lead switched once more.

Brian's short one put Salem to the front 40-39 as the clock showed three minutes to go. For a minute nothing points worthy happened and then a foul shot by Mullen knotted the count at 40-40 and so it ended with less than a minute to go.

On a rapid fire recovery and a fast break down the floor the ball went to the shifty Potter forward just on the center stripe. As the timer said 20 seconds to go, Mullen let fly—and the oval parted the cords with the deafening pair of points.

The performances of several players stood out. Harris, one of the cleverest ball handlers and tess shots in the district, was superb for the Potters. His mate at guard, Kelly, kept Quaker defenses on the alert from the start.

Horton, who left via the personal foul route late in the third period, turned in an excellent defensive job on Brian, while getting eight points himself. His total and Brian's were equal when he left the game, the Salem star collected his extra four from Bill Cain.

For Salem Brian led again. Playing his last High school game before entering the service Monday, the Salemite did some top floor work besides garnering a majority of the Quaker points. He 12 last night brings his total to 187 points this season.

Ray Kelly was valuable while in the game until the first minute of the fourth period, when he went out on fouls. Schaeffer, whose job it will be to take over where Brian leaves off, got nine points and was on the beam in everything but foul shooting. He missed four of five.

BASEBALL MOGULS NOT IN HURRY TO NAME COMMISSION

Appear To Be Last On the Books In Present New York Session

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Contrary to general expectations, major league club owners and officials appeared to be in no hurry today to select a new baseball commissioner to succeed the late Judge Kenesaw M. Landis.

Neither the naming of a commissioner, nor even its consideration, is on the agenda of the joint session, President William Harridge of the American league disclosed. The only way the question could be raised would be by unanimous consent of the 16 club owners.

"Consideration of a new major league agreement and discussion of details of the All-Star game at Fenway park, Boston this summer are the only matters on the agenda," said Harridge.

According to Harridge, one team could block action because Leslie O'Connor, member of the three-man advisory council, failed to mention consideration of a Landis successor in his "call" for a joint session.

May Force Hand
At least four club representatives, Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, Jack Zeller of the Detroit Tigers, Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians and Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds were in no haste on immediate action, preferring to delay until all candidates have been thoroughly investigated. Giles has said the new commissioner should have no previous official connection with the game and that he should have a legal background.

The "action now" owners may attempt to force the issue. Ford Frick, president of the National league and leading candidate for the commissioner's post, was believed to have nine votes "in the bag," with three club owners professing to have "open minds." However, they must first convince the "de-liberators" that immediate action is essential.

The committee of ten, five from each league, completed the draft of a new major league agreement begun in Chicago last month. Details were not disclosed.

The two leagues called separate conferences today to ratify the agreement. A joint session will be held in the afternoon.

One of the rumored changes from the original agreement adopted for Landis' office in 1921 was "the decision to require a three-fourths vote for the commissioner'ship instead of the majority vote."

Twenty Knockouts Recorded Semi-Final Bout Last Night

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, Feb. 3.—Forty-five amateur leather-pushers entered in the 17th annual Golden Gloves boxing tournament last night punched their way into the semi-finals—20 by knockouts.

Teams from Akron and Youngstown joined in the fray, the tournament's second night. Sixty-four fights are carded for the semi-finals Tuesday and the 16 championship bouts will be held Friday.

Winners in the open division will be awarded trips to Chicago for the 17th annual Golden Gloves and to Boston for the National AAU Senior championships.

Seven boys from Youngstown, six from Akron and one from Niles fought their way into the semi-finals. Four of the Youngstown winners and one from Akron were in the novice division.

Ozzie Pegues of Youngstown defeated the Bohles of Cleveland and Johnny Emanuel of Akron knocked out Jimmy Alaimo of Cleveland in the third round in 118-pound matches.

Progress along victory trail was a bit tougher last night, but the Columbian Clippers stayed right in the middle of the road to post their twelfth straight win in as many games, 38-26, over a fighting Trojan outfit on the Sebring floor.

The victory marked the Clippers third in Tri-County competition and also marked the lowest total the high-scoring Clipper machine has been held to this season. Previous low was the Salem game, which Columbian won 40-39.

Lanky Harry Hollinger, with a 14 point average, was held to three points by Sebring's Bob Sharpnack, who in turn came through with his team's high of 11 markers. Harry Cace paced the winners with 17 points, on five field goals and seven fouls.

Hot On Fouls
The Clipper foul-shooting ability paid off well. In 21 tosses at the hoop from the free line, the Columbian lads dumped 16 through while their opponents were getting eight out of 16.

Columbian led all the way, 11-7 at the first period, 21-10 by halftime and 29-19 as the final began.

Clipper reserves chalked up their 20th straight victory by trouncing the Trojans in the preliminary, 38-19. A Clipper Junior High squad also won, rounding out a perfect evening with a 21-16 margin.

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Wanta start an argument? Harold "Cle" Olsen, Ohio State's basketball coach, recently picked out a quintet that he called the five outstanding coaches between Pittsburgh and the Rocky mountains.

The names: Doc Carson, Pitt; Adolph Rupp, Kentucky; Lt. Cmdr. Tony Hinkle, Butler and U.S. Navy; Piggy Lambert, Purdue, and Dutch Lonborg, Northwestern.

That's going to hurt somebody's local pride. Word from Miami is that a lot of boss followers are bumming bucks around town but that Hialeah officials are "doing a splendid job of handing out dough to the worthy ones."

The Eastern Amateur Hockey league has been invited to send a team to San Francisco, Seattle and Vancouver, B.C., next spring and likely will accept if traveling isn't too bad.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR
Dan Parker, New York Mirror: "College basketball doesn't need a czar so much as it needs coaches who will see that their players learn the Ten Commandments before they tackle the basketball rules."

Quakers Falter In Last Half, Drop Third To Potters, 42-40

E. Liverpool's Final Second Long Shot Measures Salem After One-Sided First Half

A long shot from the center of the floor by diminutive Jim Kelly with just 20 seconds to go put the finishing touches to Salem High's third loss in 13 games last night at East Liverpool's spacious Memorial auditorium before a well-packed house of some 1,365 paid spectators.

The swishing heave from the center stripe of the 84-foot court made the score East Liverpool 42, Salem 40. And that's the way it ended seconds later.

The Pottery victory was a result of one of the most effective steam-roller comebacks ever dreamed up in any cage contest.

After a seemingly safe and certainly impressive 11 point margin, 27-16, at halftime, the Quakers fell into another of their last half slumbers, and allowed an aggressive and inspired Potter crew to step right up and take the initiative away from them.

From the second half tip-off right down to the final buzzer, the Quakers were a completely different appearing outfit from the smooth-working combine that whizzed over the shining boards in the first two frames.

What snapped in Quaker offensive tactics is a question, but one thing is certain: East Liverpool came to life and dumped through a sizzling 15 point barrage to Salem's five in the third and outpointed the losers 11-8 in the hair-raising final.

There's a cage theory that says the team which takes the most shots is most likely to win. Facts last night would prove that statement. Salem tossed 31 at the hoop in the first half and got 12 of them through. The Potters threw some 24 and completed seven.

In the second half Salem tried at the bucket only 14 times and six went through the mesh. The Potters, however, got away 20 shots and made good on ten. Salem only had six shots at the basket in the final third.

Perhaps a better set of facts to explain why the Quakers were on the short end of the final tally is the foul shooting. Salem collected single points on four of 14 tries, allowing 10 points to slip by. East Liverpool made good on eight and missed eight.

From the floor the locals outdid their conquerors. Coach Bob Miller's charges put 18 field goals through the hoop to 17 for the Potters. Of these 18, two were made on long shots and 16 from within the foul line. The Potters edged six of their 17 away out and got 11 from down under.

The tide turned in the third frame. From the start Liverpool took over and some un-canny heaving by Kelly and Jim Harris, coupled with a few buckets from Dick Horton, Bill Cain and Bob McGraw, sliced the margin to one point, 32-31, as the third period ended.

Liverpool, behind since the first minute of play, stepped into the lead momentarily as the fourth began after Kelly had tied it with a foul and Bob Mullen added two points on a toss from the center. It was 34-32 until Walt Harris knotted it again, with seven minutes to go.

Mutt Schaeffer put Salem in the lead with an under basket push-up and two fouls, one by Harris and another by Mullen, knotted it again. There were four minutes left.

Mullen got another foul and Liverpool led for a second until Schaeffer dumped a two-pointer to put Salem ahead again, 38-37. McGraw's one-handed toss netted two more Potter points and the lead switched once more.

Brian's short one put Salem to the front 40-39 as the clock showed three minutes to go. For a minute nothing point-worthy happened and then a four-shot by Mullen knotted the count at 40-40 and so it stood with less than a minute to go.

On a rapid fire recovery and a fast break down the floor the ball went to the shifty Potter forward just on the center stripe. As the Mullen let fly—and the oval parted the cords with the decking pair of points.

The performances of several players stood out. Harris, one of the cleverest ball handlers and toss shots in the district, was superb for the Potters. His mate at guard, Kelly, kept Quaker defenses on the alert from the start.

Horton, who left via the personal foul rule late in the third period, turned in an excellent defensive job on Brian, while getting eight points himself. His total and Brian's were equal when he left the game, the Salem star collecting his extra four from Bill Cain.

For Salem Brian led again. Playing his last high school game before enlisting in the service Monday, the Salento did some top floor work, besides garnering a majority of the Quaker points. His 12 last night brings his total to 187 points this season.

Roy Kelly was valuable while in the game until the first minute of the fourth period, when he went out on fouls. Schaeffer, whose job it will be to take over where Brian leaves off, got nine points and was on the beam in everything but foul shooting. He missed four of five.

Peetering Mullen with effective play all evening was Jimmie Appedisa, who turned in an excellent defensive game. Appedisa, usually a top scorer, only took five shots throughout the entire game and missed four points.

Norma Smith and Francis Lannan alternated in the first few minutes as though he was in for a big night. Getting three rapid fire two-pointers, the Quaker forward had his tap shut off and didn't tally.

Appear To Be Last On the Books In Present New York Session

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Contrary to general expectations, major league club owners and officials appeared to be in no hurry today to select a new baseball commissioner to succeed the late Judge Kenesaw M. Landis.

Neither the naming of a commissioner, nor even its consideration, is on the agenda of the joint session, President William Harridge of the American league disclosed. The only way the question could be raised would be by unanimous consent of the 16 club owners.

"Consideration of a new major league agreement and discussion of details of the All-Star game at Fenway park, Boston this summer are the only matters on the agenda," said Harridge.

According to Harridge, one team could block action because Leslie O'Connor, member of the three-man advisory council, failed to mention consideration of a Landis successor in his "call" for a joint session.

At least four club representatives, Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, Jack Zeller of the Detroit Tigers, Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians and Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds were in no haste on immediate action, preferring to delay until all candidates have been thoroughly investigated.

Giles has said the new commissioner should have no previous official connection with the game and that he should have a legal background.

The "action now" owners may attempt to force the issue. Ford Frick, president of the National league and leading candidate for the commission, was believed to have nine votes "in the bag," with three club owners professing to have "open minds." However, they must first convince the "liberalists" that immediate action is essential.

The committee of ten, five from each league, completed the draft of a new major league agreement begun in Chicago last month. Details were not disclosed.

The two leagues called separate press conferences to ratify the agreement. A joint session will be held in the afternoon.

One of the rumored changes from the original agreement adopted for Landis' office in 1921 was the decision to require a three-fourths vote for the commissioner instead of the majority vote.

Teams from Akron and Youngstown joined in the fray, the tournament's second night. Sixty-four fights are carded for the semi-finals Tuesday and the 16 championship bouts will be held Friday.

Winners in the open division will be awarded trips to Chicago for the Tournament of Champions and to Boston for the National AAU Senior championships.

Seven boys from Youngstown, six from Akron and one from Niles fought their way into the semi-finals. Four of the Youngstown winners and one from Akron were in the novice division.

In the open division, Ozzie Pegues of Youngstown defeated Lee Bohles of Cleveland and Johnny Emanuel of Akron knocked out Jimmy Alaimo of Cleveland in the third round in 118-pound matches.

Some Results: Baldo Berz of Youngstown defeated Samuel Grimes of Cleveland, both 147-pounders.

In the 160-pound class bouts Charles Marsh of Niles knocked out Roamus Ellington of Cleveland in the second round, Harold Williams of Youngstown defeated James Allen of Cleveland, Don Wuske of Akron defeated Thomas Brown of Cleveland and Sam Cranfall of Akron defeated Luther Ogletree of Cleveland.

Garfield Fears of Akron defeated Henry Haynes of Cleveland in an 175-pound match.

In the novice division: Frank Zimmer of Akron defeated Monroe Wright of Cleveland in a 112-pound bracket match, and in the 126-pound class Dewitt Carr of Youngstown knocked out Woodrow Lawrence of Cleveland in the third round.

Don Baughman of Youngstown knocked out Curtis Broughton of Cleveland in the first round of their 135-pound novice scrap.

In the 147-pound class, Eugene Smith of Youngstown knocked out Henry Lee James of Cleveland in the first round and Fred Wheeler, also of Youngstown, did same to Jackie Dane of Cleveland.

"I'm slower than a plug horse," says the Marine private. His father, once known as the world's fastest human, tried to interest him in athletics but Prisk says he just couldn't make the grade.

No Chip Off Old Block: PARRIS ISLAND—Prisk Paddock, 19-year-old son of Capt. Charley Paddock, Marine officer killed in an Alaskan plane crash, says he has long ago abandoned any ideas of becoming a runner.

"I'm slower than a plug horse," says the Marine private. His father, once known as the world's fastest human, tried to interest him in athletics but Prisk says he just couldn't make the grade.

Peetering Mullen with effective play all evening was Jimmie Appedisa, who turned in an excellent defensive game. Appedisa, usually a top scorer, only took five shots throughout the entire game and missed four points.

Norma Smith and Francis Lannan alternated in the first few minutes as though he was in for a big night. Getting three rapid fire two-pointers, the Quaker forward had his tap shut off and didn't tally.

...to hold the Russians out of Danzig. With the recent removal of the German fleet from Gdynia to Denmark and the Red fleet's constant western encroachment, any German hope of retreating by sea is largely forlorn.

Completion of the Stettin operation will bring the Russians up to the Oder from its mouth to Czechoslovakia. Then, if not before, we shall see what happens to the "Frankfurt box," where every hour the delay is giving the Germans opportunity to prepare their final defense of Berlin.

As the Germans say, capture of Berlin may not mean the end of the war. But, aside from the very important psychological angles, the city is the railroad and highway center of the nation. Without it, Germany will be like a wheel with the hub removed.

JAP ARMY-NAVY SHOWDOWN HINTED

Luzon Action May Force Action By Enemy's Hideout Fleet

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—The Japanese army on Luzon, enflamed in a strangely listless battle with American forces, may be using this occasion for a showdown with the Tokyo admiralty before the hour comes to defend the homeland.

An American naval spokesman in discussing the mystery of the relatively light enemy resistance to Gen. MacArthur's advancing land forces on Luzon, recalls that high Japanese army commanders have been urging the navy to come out and fight.

"We think," said the spokesman, "that Gen. Yamashita is waiting for support from the navy and air forces."

The navy, he said, has shrunk to "the size of a task force." He did not elaborate.

Navy figures show that in the last eight months more Japanese vessels have been sunk or damaged than in the two and a half years of war prior to that time.

Since the first battle of the Philippines June 19, 1944, 911 enemy ships have been sunk compared with 871 prior to that time. In addition, 104 Japanese ships probably have been sunk and 710 damaged since June 19—an average of 50 a week sunk or damaged.

A breakdown of the losses since June 19 includes 152 combatant and 759 non-combatant ships sunk while of the 871 before then 152 were combatant and 719 non-combatant.

He said the latest data on the second battle of the Philippines in late October showed 23 enemy combatant ships sunk and possibly 25.

These included three battleships, four carriers, one large and three light; six heavy cruisers; three to four light cruisers and seven to eight destroyers.

The Navy's recapitulation also listed 83 enemy ships as probably sunk before June 19 and 104 probably sunk since; 429 damaged before June 19 and 710 damaged before June 19 and 1,725 since for a grand total of 3,108 sunk, probably sunk or damaged by naval forces since Dec. 7, 1941.

Salem Soldier Took Refuge In Dutch Home Upon Arrival At Western Front

Writing from somewhere in France on Dec. 30, Pvt. Raymond Moore, serving with an armored infantry division in France, describes the kind of Christmas he and his outfit spent in the front lines in Luxembourg.

"It didn't take long to get up where things were happening. That was Christmas day and part of Christmas night. It was in a town in Luxembourg where we joined our outfit and we got there just in time for dinner.

"No one seemed to care about the Jerries just over the hill. Shells were going both ways and there was what was left of the outfit and the new men eating turkey.

"After dinner we were quartered in what houses were left standing. I was fortunate to get in the kitchen of a nice house. The people who lived there took what they could carry and moved back.

"The coffee pot was still on the stove but the fire was out. Dishes were stacked neatly in the cupboard and except for the dust and dirt from shell bursts every thing was neat.

"I felt sorry for the people who had to leave all this coziness and comfort.

"No one could stay upstairs for if a shell landed on the roof the floor was no place to be. We took the mattresses off the beds and laid them on the kitchen floor.

"Soon after we were in the house in walked an old man. This was his mother's house. His wife was in a hospital from injuries she received when one part of the house took a direct hit.

"I never heard so many guns fire so often as they did Christmas day. You could hear small arm fire during the lull, which was short. Just over the hill men were dying. We were sweating out our introduction to the Hun, which never came.

"The biggest thing that impressed me was the change in the new men with, and like, me. I had imagined what my visit to the front would be like. I had dreamed of being close to death in England, but even though it was very near now, it still seemed unreal. Perhaps it was because it was Christmas.

"Around midnight we loaded on the half-tracks and started back for France. The danger was apparently over, and the outfit was pretty well beat up.

"We are living in an abandoned, bombed-out hospital. The Germans were here before us, as they were everywhere else in France. This was formerly a school for nuns and they still live in the best parts. A church is built right into the rest of the school. You can't imagine the destruction that has come to France."

GEN. EAKER CITES CAUSES FOR NAZI WORLD WAR LOSS

(By Associated Press)

ROME, Feb. 3—Adolf Hitler has lost the second World War because he failed to build up a strategic air force and because he fell behind in every type of "technological development weapons," Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker said today.

The Mediterranean air force commander addressed war correspondents on the third anniversary of the day he landed in England to take over the U. S. Bomber command.

Germany was definitely defeated when bombers cut her oil supply to half the minimum requirements for her defense, Eaker said. In modern warfare, he said, the battle must be won first, and that, he added, has been accomplished by the Allies.

"If the Germans had our long-range bombers the landings in North Africa, Italy and France would have been impossible, and the Germans today would be in Moscow and Stalingrad," Eaker said.

Mediterranean air force combat operation losses in 1944, 5,306 planes, would have been higher if the United States had failed to develop both pilots and long-range fighters superior to anything the enemy ever possessed, Eaker said.

He listed these accomplishments for his command in the year:

Tons of bombs dropped, 390,258; enemy aircraft destroyed in the air, 4,203, plus 1,221 probables; enemy aircraft damaged, 1,475; ships sunk, 486; ships severely damaged, 194; ships damaged, 1,180; enemy vehicles destroyed and damaged, 28,780; aircraft destroyed on the ground, 4,584; locomotives destroyed, 1,940.

"A man's chances still depend on his own knowledge and his using his brain. Dismounted or on foot, I am a rifleman and ammunition carrier for our light machine guns. In the track I'm second gunner on the 50-caliber machine gun.

"We are living in an abandoned, bombed-out hospital. The Germans were here before us, as they were everywhere else in France. This was formerly a school for nuns and they still live in the best parts. A church is built right into the rest of the school. You can't imagine the destruction that has come to France."

GEN. EAKER CITES CAUSES FOR NAZI WORLD WAR LOSS

(By Associated Press)

ROME, Feb. 3—Adolf Hitler has lost the second World War because he failed to build up a strategic air force and because he fell behind in every type of "technological development weapons," Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker said today.

The Mediterranean air force commander addressed war correspondents on the third anniversary of the day he landed in England to take over the U. S. Bomber command.

Germany was definitely defeated when bombers cut her oil supply to half the minimum requirements for her defense, Eaker said. In modern warfare, he said, the battle must be won first, and that he added, has been accomplished by the Allies.

"If the Germans had our long-range bombers the landings in North Africa, Italy and France would have been impossible, and the Germans today would be in Moscow and Stalingrad," Eaker said.

Mediterranean air force combat operation losses in 1944, 5,300 planes, would have been higher if the United States had long-range fighters superior to anything the enemy ever possessed, Eaker said.

He listed these accomplishments for his command in the year:

Tons of bombs dropped, 390,250; enemy aircraft destroyed in the air, 4,263, plus 1,221 probables; enemy aircraft damaged, 1,475; ships sunk, 486; ships severely damaged, 194; ships damaged, 1,180; enemy vehicles destroyed and damaged, 28,780; aircraft destroyed on the ground, 1,584; locomotives destroyed, 1,940.
